

Conclusion

Good job completing your practice. Remember that it's important to try to make time to practice at least once daily in order to master these new skills. In addition, if you find unwanted thoughts popping into your mind during the course of the day, try applying one or more of these skills in your daily life.